FORESTRY NOTES

ORDER PINE SEEDLINGS NOW, SAYS FORESTER

It's time now to order your pine seedlings, states Area Forester Marlon Parker of the Mississippi Forestry Commission.

You can make your application at the County Agent, Soil Conservation, or the Area Forester's office, located in the County Agricultural Building.

Price of the seedlings will be the same as last year. Each landowner is entitled 2,000 free seedlings plus 70¢ shipping charge, all additional seedlings will be $3.50 per thousand plus 35¢ per thousand shipping charges.

Before making application for seedlings, determine definitely where you want to plant them, how many you will need and that you have enough labor to plant them.

Now is the time to put those idle acres back in production. Total number of seedlings produced by our State Nurseries last year was 47,369,480 seedlings.

In number of seedlings planted Hancock County led the state with 1,512,000. We hope we can go over this figure another year. Order now so you will be first on the list.

Trees are a growing crop. The amount of income obtained from them depends on how they are protected, managed, harvested and sold. Information about seedlings and other forest problems contact your Area Forester Marlon Parker, Bay St. Louis, Miss.

CONGRESSIONAL SIDELIGHTS

CONGRESSMAN WIL. M. CULLEN

FEDERAL AID TO PUBLIC SCHOOLS DEFEATED

The past week in the House was indicative of what is to follow in the remaining few weeks of the Congress. Most of the week was taken up on the long-delayed and much-discussed Federal Aid to school construction bill.

After many hours of hectic debate and the adoption of many amendments, the House finally killed the bill by a vote of 224 to 194.

After approximately a year and a half's consideration by the House Committee on Education and Labor, the bill was finally reported early in the session. It was tied up in the Committee on Rules for some four months, partly by the handful of Southern Members on the Committee and partly by the Democratic leadership who had some misgivings about the desirability of reporting it to the floor.

While there is undeniably a demand for additional classrooms, there is the fundamental and basic question involved of Federal control of our public schools. There are many thoughtful people in this country who fear that, once the Federal Government enters the field of public education, it is only a question of time until our public schools will be completely under the domination of the Federal Government.

Among the many patriotic and conservative groups who opposed this legislation was the powerful American Legion.

On the whole the two principles which the people of this country guard most zealously are freedom of religion and freedom of the training of the youth from Federal domination.

Intervenor throughout the whole controversy was national politics. Both parties, looking to the November election, were anxious to obtain some political fodder upon which to campaign.

Of course, the most controversial issue was the so-called Powell Amendment. The Harlem-Negro Congressman has waged a relentless campaign for his amendment which would bar any of the Federal Funds from states practicing segregation in their public schools.

We made our position clear on this more than a year ago. In addressing the House last week on this subject we said in part:

"First, I want to make clear to my southern colleagues, those who have not had an opportunity to study this legislation, just what I have said. I understand that there will be a proposal offered in the form of an amendment by some Member of the House to provide for the denial of any of these funds to those schools in any section of the country which maintain racial segregation in their public schools. I am not too much concerned about that—that might be a little surprising to you, too—because I do not think it is material whether that amendment is adopted or not.

"In the first place, that objective can be reached and no doubt will be reached in this or some other administration through administrative action.

"If there be any doubt in the minds of my colleagues about this, I call your attention, first to the fact that the argument will be made that the Supreme Court has spoken; that segregation is not permitted in the public schools of the land and, therefore, no Federal funds should go to states practicing school segregation. Further, I call your attention to the fact that only a few weeks ago the Civil Aeronautics Administration, another administration agency of the Government, denied federal funds by administrative action to airports in communities requiring segregation in the airport facilities.

"However, if the funds are not denied administratively, you and I know that when the appropriation bill comes up making the funds available provided by this proposal legislation, a rider in the form of an amendment will either be placed in the bill in committee or will be offered on the floor of the House to accomplish the same end. And if such an amendment is offered before an election—and I call your attention to the fact that there will be an election just a few weeks after the appropriation bill comes to the floor this year—such an amendment will in all likelihood be adopted.

"Finally, if that hurdle is overcome and neither of the things happens, is anyone here so naive as to think for one moment that those who advocate the denial of funds to segregated school systems will not resort to the friendly Federal courts? How long would the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, with unlimited funds and lawyers at its disposal, withhold such action? Finally, is there any doubt in the minds of either friends or foes of this legislation as to what the present nine men who occupy the marble palace across the plaza from this Capitol would do the Supreme Court?

"In this connection, each of you received a copy of a statement from the executive council of the American Federation of Labor and the CIO telling you in substance just what I have said. I quote from the last paragraph of the statement:

"For our part, the AFL-CIO pledges that if Congress enacts a Federal school-aid program we shall keep alert-watch over its administration. If Federal money is allocated to States or school districts which have not complied with the Supreme Court's decision we will support and, if necessary, initiate legal steps to prevent such misuse of the taxpayer's money."

With the hurdle out of the way, the House on the 16 took up the highly controversial Civil Rights bill. We are doing everything possible to defeat this iniquitous proposal, but the odds are against us in the House where a filibuster is impossible.

You won't find "Telephone Town" on the map, but it plays a big part in the progress and prosperity of our State. It is made up of the 4500 Southern Bell employees who live and work in communities, large and small, all over Mississippi. Along with their families, they'd form a city nearly as large as Clarksdale or Columbus. They are good citizens who vote and take part in church, civic and other activities of their communities. Members of these 4500 families earn 16 million dollars a year in Southern Bell salaries. They will spend an estimated 11 million dollars in Mississippi this year, in addition to paying about 4 million in taxes. "Telephone Town" means a lot of industry, too: Southern Bell has invested an average of more than 10 million dollars yearly since 1945 for construction in the State. Large sums are paid Mississippians each year for materials and supplies, including an average of $1,400,000 yearly for poles and cross-arms alone. By doing their part as citizens and by their purchases and taxes, Southern Bell and its employees are helping to improve Mississippi's schools, roads and hospitals, adding materially to the State's growth and prosperity.

JAMES H. CLARK APPOINTED VICE-CHAIRMAN OF MISSISSIPPI FORESTRY COMMISSION

Wednesday, June 13, the Mississippi Forestry Commission at its regular monthly meeting, appointed Mr. James H. Clark of Croby, vice-chairman. The post of vice-chairman, occupied for many years by Mr. Robert M. Newton, Sr., of Wiggins, was vacated upon the expiration of Mr. Newton's appointment as a commissioner.

Mr. W. E. Martin, Sr. of Wiggins was recently appointed by Governor Coleman to fill the vacancy created by Mr. Newton's leaving.

Mr. Clark has been a commissioner since September of 1940. He is now serving his third appointment.

The Commission in view of the long period of service by Mr. Newton presented him with the following resolution:

"WHEREAS Robert M. Newton Sr. of Wiggins was appointed to the Mississippi Forestry Commission on February 14, 1929 and has served the State almost continuously since that time; and Whereas during his extended series of terms the Forestry Commission has grown tremendously with much of the progress being credited to his sound judgment, unlimited devotion to duty and his strong belief in a cause for the betterment of Mississippi; and Whereas his length of service on the Forestry Commission exceeds any other; and Whereas he has served as vice-chairman of the Forestry Commission more than half of each year; and Whereas the Commission's growth is indicated by the fact that the legislative appropriation has increased from $10,000 per annum at the time of his appointment to $1,000,000 per annum at the present time; and Whereas his long experience, business judgment and great interest in Forestry have been so valuable in advancing the State forestry program in Mississippi; Now be it

RESOLVED by the Mississippi Forestry Commission that Robert M. Newton, Sr., has served this Commission and his State with such extreme efficiency and loyalty that the results of his work will, without doubt be reflected for many years to come; and be it

RESOLVED further, That the members of the Commission are delighted at having had the opportunity to serve with him and realized to the fullest extent his outstanding contributions to Mississippi and forestry through his long years of service. May God

BRANDING
CATTLE IN EFFECT JULY 1, 1956

More than 4,000 livestock brands have been recorded since Mississippi's new branding law went into effect July 1, 1956, the state's Livestock Theft Bureau is still receiving complaints of unauthorized branding.

According to Mississippi Brands Officer Frank Rodgers, section 9 (a) of the new livestock brand law states, "It shall be unlaw-

Civil Defense Has
Key Role in Peace

Natural disasters can strike anytime, anywhere. From pioneer days to the present, neighbors have always helped each other in times of distress. But often, the power of a great hurricane, flood or tornado completely outmatched the valiant but disorganized efforts of untrained volunteers.

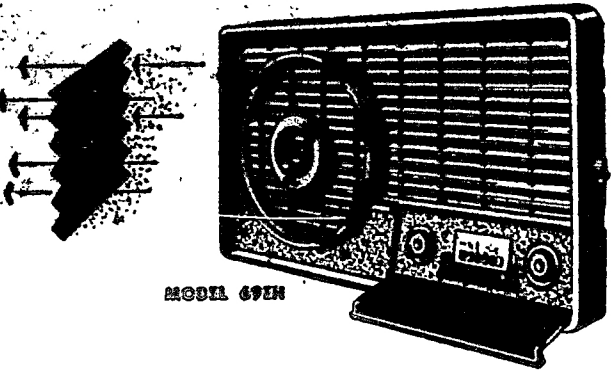

TODAY THE UNITED STATES has a form of disaster insurance—civil defense. Like any other insurance, it doesn't guarantee that disaster won't occur.

But by executive order, the Federal Civil Defense Administration does have the responsibility for coordinating all disaster relief efforts of the Federal Government under Public Law 978. This guarantees that the resources of the entire nation can be marshaled against nature on the rampage as required.

It's a job which requires the skills of many specialists, such as the Army Corps of Engineers, the National Guard and the American Red Cross. Trained civil defense workers in the general disaster area put their rescue, traffic control, first aid and other skills to practical use.

SIX-YEAR-OLD boy is carried to safety by George A. Spooner, New Britain, Conn., civil defense director, during great Northeast flood in the wake of Hurricane Diane. Chaotic flood conditions provide valuable experience for local CD workers in any attack emergency. (Hartford, Conn. Times)

Pollen Count Going Up!

New Electronic Air Purifier in 1956
FEDDERS Air Conditioners Traps
Micron-Scale Pollen and Dust

New York, N. Y. — The electronic system of air filtering used in costly hospital and laboratory equipment now promises to help hay fever sufferers about to withstand their annual siege of sniffles, headaches and discomfort as pollen count soars in the next week or two.

The advanced filtering system incorporated in new 1956 Fedders Electronic Purifier Air Conditioners, now available on the market at about the price of standard air conditioners. The new 1956 Fedders models have a separate power supply with transformer and vacuum tube rectifier that charges pollen-laden air with static electricity. Pollen as small as 1/25,000th of an inch is magnetized and trapped against the electronic filtering medium.

300% MORE EFFECTIVE than mechanical filters

As room air is circulated through the Fedders Air Conditioner again and again, virtual freedom from pollen is assured. The new Fedders Electronic Air Purifier system is 300% more effective than mechanical filters used in standard air conditioners. It is available in two sizes, for medium and large rooms.

RAISING DAIRY CALVES

Care in feeding milk to young dairy calves will go a long way in helping you grow out top quality replacement heifers. Don't just give them all the milk they want. It is best to keep them a trifle hungry.

A large, healthy calf can take more milk than a small or weak one. For small, healthy calves, one quart of milk per feeding is plenty for the first week. A large vigorous calf can take up to a quart and a half.

If the calf is doing well, the milk can be gradually increased during the second week.

Many successful calf raisers limit small calves to two quarts per feeding regardless of age, and the larger ones to two and a half quarts.

Do not guess at the amount of milk you feed. Weigh it, or measure it. A good recommendation for feeding is one pound of milk for every 10 pounds of the animal's body weight.

Feed milk at the same temperature each time. The most desirable temperature is 95 degrees to 100 degrees F. Here again, don't guess, use a thermometer.

Another aid in preventing scours is to practice strict sanitation. Cleanliness with feeding is a vital part of successful calf raising.

PASTURES

Coastal Bermuda. Old Coastal that has been cut for hay and has not been nitrated this month should have an application of 30 to 40 pounds of nitrogen per acre.

Coastal cut this year should be nitrated now if it has not already been done. You cannot grow real good Coastal Bermuda without nitrogen.

Johnson Grass should be cut when the first seed stalks show up across the field. Don't let it completely seed out before cutting.

As you have already probably made your first cutting of this hay, watch the meadows and cut the second time when the grass is ready. By cutting when the grass is booting, you will make less hay, but the quality will be higher. This will more than make up for the lower tonnage.

COTTON PICK SACKS

Better start now locating some cotton pick sacks for this fall. Do not use asphalt coated pick sacks. Often this lowers the quality of cotton.

When asphalt coated pick sacks become old the asphalt cracks, flakes off in the sack and becomes mixed in the cotton. All particles are practically impossible to remove. After the mill has processed the cotton, the finished product has fat spots. This results in a loss to the mill.

This loss is passed back to the grower in lower cotton prices, especially in areas where this damage has been evident in the past.

Plastic coated and plastic dot sacks have been developed to replace the asphalt sacks. Plain duck sacks are also available.

The National Cotton Council adopted a resolution at its annual meeting urging that asphalt pick sacks be no longer used.

CUT MACHINERY COSTS

Fuel represents around 40 percent of the total cost of operating a tractor. You can save at least 10 percent of this with improved storage and proper fuel system adjustments.

Evaporation during storage in summer accounts for a large part of the loss of tractor fuels. Half-full tanks in sunshine may lose three to four percent in a month, while shaded tanks will lose less than one percent.

In the three months unshaded tanks can lose 15 percent. The shaded tanks should lose less than six percent.

Aluminum or white paint on the tanks will also help cut evaporation losses, as these colors reflect heat.

A small tank filled every two weeks will lessen storage time and at the same time reduce evaporation losses.

Carburetor adjustments, spark timing, grinding valves and cleaning the air filter all help save fuel.

Take time to repair, clean and adjust those parts of the tractor where most fuel loss occurs. Save money.

Wood Using Industries Pro
Boon To State Timber Gro

The location of a new $30,000,000 Kraft pulp and paper mill at Columbus and the expansion of facilities by two other large wallboard plants during the past few weeks not only will boost Mississippi's economy and provide large new outlets for the state's pulp, but further emphasize the importance of the state's vast timber resources.

Masonite, world's largest wallboard plant, will spend $14,000,000 this year for a new production unit and expansion of its tempering plant, warehouses and processing facilities. It will be the second major expansion since the plant was established in 1925, and will not only open new markets for pulp, but will give employment to an additional 300 workers.

Johns-Manville simultaneously revealed that it will build a new multi-million dollar plant adjacent to its present plant which will provide 125 new job opportunities and consume an additional 15,000 cords of hard pulpwoods per year.

During the past ten years pulpwood consumption within the state has increased from 40 per cent in 1945 to 73 per cent in 1955. The new Columbus plant alone will utilize an additional 300,000 cords of pulpwood annually.

Back in 1945 the state produced 1,069,031 cords of both hard and soft pulpwoods, 20 per cent of which was hard and 80 per cent soft. Only 40 per cent of this production was utilized in Mississippi, the 60 per cent balance being shipped out-of-state for processing elsewhere.

Last year in Mississippi a total of 1,929,228 cords were cut, 38 per cent being hard and 62 per cent soft pulp. A total of 73 per cent, or 1,413,556 cords, were used by the state's four wallboard and two pulp mills. Only 27 per cent, or 515,870 cords, were shipped out of state.

Few states possess the wealth of timber to be found in Mississippi. It is one of the chief sources of income to the state, amounting to approximately $400,000,000 annually.

More than one half, or 16,500,000 acres, of Mississippi's 30,000,000 acres is forest land covering an area the size of Vermont, New Hampshire and Massachusetts.

Of this total forest area, about 1,140,000 acres are in national forests, 6,300,000 acres are owned by private farm operators, and about 7,800,000 acres are under industrial ownership.

Although a variety of forest types are found, pines, oaks and gums predominate. Loblolly pine is the most abundant wood species, with shortleaf pine second in abundance. These predominate principally in the southeastern section of the state.

Among the hardwoods, oaks exceed all others in volume and extent of distribution, but are found in the greatest concentration in the lower Delta and central regions. Gums are second in volume and are widely distributed in much the same pattern as the oaks. Cottonwood, hickory, yellow poplar, pecan, beech, ash, and willow are scattered and occur in lesser volumes.

The use of hard pulpwoods has increased from only 213,006

Plants like Johns-Manville Corporation's wallboard plant at Columbus, currently undergoing expansion, are helping the consumption of Mississippi's vast timber resources. A. & I. Board photo.

International Paper Company with two large pulp mills in Mississippi also are large contributors to the state's timber industry. The above plant manufacturers have doubled in size since it located here.

cords in 1945 to 733,105 cords in 1955, nearly equal consumption of softwoods.

Throughout Mississippi today industry, keenly alert to the advantages of these vast forests, is operating profitably in the manufacture of such products as paper and wallboard, rayon pulp, furniture, fabricated houses, shuttle blocks, gun stocks, handles for a variety of implements, countless naval stores, boats, powder, plings and poles, and a long list of other useful articles.

The pulpwood using industries, however, have been among the first and are the major consumers. These include such companies as Masonite, Johns-Manville, Flintkote at Meridian, U. S. Gypsum at Greenville, and International Paper Company at Natchez and Pascagoula. The latter already has doubled its capacity at Natchez with a $20,000,000 expenditure, and is expected to make another major expansion in the near future.

Naval stores also are major products of these forests. Gum from pine trees is made into pitch, tar and turpentine that in turn find their way into paint, varnish, printing ink, oils, grease, adhesive plastics and numerous other products.

Because of the long growing seasons and ample moisture, it is practicable to grow more than a cord of timber in a year in Mississippi. The value of timber produced in the state is close to $200,000,000 annually. The value of manufactured products, including furniture and paper, amounts to another $200,000,000.

Mississippi's timber industry is a practical solution to the wastes from logging and from more than 100 mills. Handwood waste, tops, branches, slabs, and other products can be utilized in the manufacture of pulp, flour, charcoal, activated carbon, wood molasses, and acetates. Problems in the utilization of wastes now are economic rather than technical. The collecting and transporting waste from widely scattered mills is the principal problem.

Mississippi's forest care may be improved by a definite period, during which private owners are encouraged to well managed construction reforestation practices.

Meantime, a complete state forestry program is being undertaken. Findings of this program are expected to be in inducing additional mills to locate within the state.

Deadlines in the acreage part of the soil bank July 20 and July 31. All agreements must be completed by July 31.

In Mississippi the soil conservation program applies to rice and peanuts. For information on the program, visit your county office.

Are you planning to plant seedlings next year? Don't wait until then to plant seedlings. County agents are making applications for seedlings to be delivered next year. When applying, figure your needs and plan your program.

WAVELAND WANDERINGS

GEORGETTE B. HALL

Hello, again! We have just returned from a trip of four thousand miles through some of the West's most magnificent scenery. One of the most awe inspiring sights that this country has to offer is the Grand Canyon of Arizona. The Fourth of July was spent there. As it happened we arrived there just 3 days after the fatal plane crashes over the Grand Canyon and efforts to recover the bodies of victims, though extremely hazardous, and in the case of one plane, impossible, crews were at work. We got our first view of the Grand Canyon from the point known as Desert Inn, where one climbs into the colorful Indian

Tower and gazes out into the Canyon. The Canyon stretches out at this point for an expanse of fifteen miles and one is silenced by its grandeur, its splendor and its mystery. The colors are endless—blues, crimson, mauve, shades of green, brown, lavender and over all there hangs a pale blue veil of color. Above the sky is brilliantly blue and filled with white clouds. There is an ever present cool breeze reminding us that we are over seven thousand feet high. Words have never been able to describe this wonder of Nature, so one just looks and gazes in wonderment. The tourist next to you says, "That's where it happened, bust over those sharp chasms to the right, at the point where the Little Colorado joins the Colorado River." Then like everyone else on the mountain of rock, you take a look through the telescope, and miles in the distance you see a black spot on a distant mountain. That is the scene of the disaster, the greatest tragedy in the history of aviation, a crash and a holocaust that took the lives of 128 persons. You do not see any activity over the area, yet you know that there are men down in the canyon battling strong air currents, terrific heat in the day, and cold at night to gather the remains. You are told that the accident occurred in the only part of the Canyon which has not been explored because its canyons are the deepest, the most treacherous and terrifying.

Later from another vantage point, we spoke to the sheriff who had been assisting in the rescue work. He said that there was no work in progress that afternoon because after noonday, the currents in the canyon became so strong that they would dash the frail helicopters against the walls of the canyon and smash them like matchwood. He told us that on the previous day, five bodies had been removed and that on the morning of the 4th of July, 26 had been removed.

Just then from high on the jagged edge where we stood, a small bird was seen to circle down into a part of the canyon. As we watched him swoop down into the seemingly bottomless pit of the Canyon, a swift draft of air caught it and swept it helplessly in another direction. Nature's forces were even being cruel to Nature's own. It was then that we suddenly realized what dangers faced that small band of rescuers who were challenging death to recover the dead.

It was impossible to get accommodations at the El Tovar Lodge at the Canyon or at any of the other places provided for tourists in the Grand Canyon Park.
